

Hello, I'm writing this email to you to share my experience with 4pillars. I'm understanding that the counselling sessions that are required to help rebuild credit after filing a proposal may no longer be there. I wanted to just share that when I went to 4 pillars in Kamloops that very first call I made, one of the first things I asked was in this whole process was I going to be able to learn how to budget, learn about important areas of where my money should be spent and would 4 pillars help me to rebuild my credit if I were to go this route. That being said I talked with Bob and he assured me through the whole process all of this would happen. Having gone through the process of sending in a proposal to my creditors. 4pillars has followed up with me and I have done the mandatory counselling sessions that were needed. Without these sessions I feel that my lack of knowledge about money and spending and credit, which had me in the position of needing to file in the first place, may have just set me back in a similar position. Instead I have learned about budgeting, what percentage of money should be going where and most important I have a savings account with a monthly flow going into it. 4pillars has been through every step of the way with me and has taught me the skills needed to build a healthy financial future. Had those sessions not been offered to me I would feel at a loss. In sharing my story I hope that the credit rebuilding sessions will continue to be there for people to have access to it is a very important part in my financial future as I'm sure for many others.

Kind regards
Trisha
